Section 5: Program Planning

This section explains program planning for students comprising a desired sequence for courses of which students need to be aware. A tentative plan for the full sequence of courses should be developed early in the program. The specific course requirements and sequences are described below:

1. Coursework

Core Courses: All students are required to take seven required Core Courses. These are typically completed during the first three trimesters of study.

Specialization Courses:

- Students who select Plan A (Thesis) must register for 15 credits of Thesis study; they take only two specialization courses totaling six credits (see below).
- Students who select Plan B (Thematic Paper) take 12 credits of coursework in their area of specialization and 3 credits of Free Electives.

2. Capstone Project Options

A major decision all students must make concerns two Program Options, referred here as Program Plan A (Thesis) and Program Plan B (Thematic Paper).

30. Plan A: Thesis Option

The Purpose of Thesis option is for students who wish to engage an in - depth research study of a topic for their final project. Thesis option is only for students who have maintained a GPA of 3.50 or higher. Students must complete the thesis as an individual project.

Starting in the 4th trimester when students register for their Thesis credits, they will be expected to attend a weekly 90-minute seminar designed to assist in developing and conducting the project.

Thesis: Program Structure

	Credit(s)
Pre-courses	0
Required Courses	21
Elective Courses	9
Thesis	15
Written Comprehensive Examination	0
Total	45

Procedures for the Thesis Option

The results of Oral Defense Examinations are reported as:

“H” (High Pass)	equivalent to	“S*” (Superior)
“P” (Pass)	equivalent to	“S” (Satisfactory)
“I” Incomplete	equivalent to	“I” (Incomplete)
“F” (Fail)	equivalent to	“U” (Unsatisfactory)

Depending on the assessment of the Defense Examinations Committee, the student may need to revise, re-write or add work to bring the written Thesis report up to standards required by CMMU. In these instances, the thesis advisor must sign off that the student has completed the required additional work.

Students who fail the first Oral Defense Examination are allowed to repeat one more time within the five-year completion period of their program. Students who fail the first Oral Defense Examination must continue to pay the continuing registration fee for the following terms until they graduate.

An approved Thesis must conform to the format of the Thesis specified by the Research Department of the College. Students must write their own thesis in English independently. They must also have at least one publication or the manuscript has been accepted for publication in standard journal or a conference’s proceedings according to the regulations of Faculty of Graduate Studies, Mahidol University.

31. Plan B: Thematic paper: Independent Study, Consultant Internship and Consulting

Practice

The purpose thematic options are for students who wish to engage in a more active application and reflection on their learning and complete an individual project/report. The main differences are that Thematic Paper projects are conducted in a team, the scope is shorter, and Thematic Paper is taken for fewer credits.

- Independent Study (IS) involves the use of specific research methods to study a general management problem or a problem in an organization. The form and procedures of an IS project follow that of a Thesis. The scope of an IS Project differs from a thesis in that it is shorter and usually conducted by a group of students rather than individually.

- Consulting Internship (CI) is intended to enable students to apply knowledge to a management problem rather than to study it academically. A CI project might involve development of a balanced scorecard for an organization, solving a marketing problem or any other relevant management problem that exists in an organization. Note that the CI project is not a research study and the format is flexible.
- Consulting Practice (CP) involves students in learning to apply knowledge through a series of project-based learning modules. These cover a variety of significant business problems and competencies. Students learn CP in teams and solve the learning modules in class, rather than independently but students have to produce the final project/report individually. Specific modules may be required for a program.

Section 6: Examinations and the honour code

All students are required to be familiar with the provisions of the Honor System through the information provided in this Handbook. Students may obtain further information from their Department Director, and from the Academic Affairs. Violations of the Honor Code are cause for disciplinary actions imposed by the appropriate authorities of the College.

33. Types of Honour Code Violations

- 33.1 Falsifying or cheating on a report, paper, exercise, problem, test, or exam, tape, film, or computer program or any other means submitted by the student to the College to meet course requirements.
- 33.2 Cheating includes the use of unauthorized aids, copying from another student's work, asking for or giving aid verbally or in writing, or any other practice inconsistent with the principles of academic honesty.
- 33.3 Plagiarism on an assigned paper or other work submitted to meet course requirements (see below for details).
- 33.4 Failure to report a known violation of the Honor Code.
- 33.5 Any action designed to deceive a faculty member, staff member, or student in order to obtain assistance in violation of the Honor Code.
- 33.6 Submission of work prepared for another course without prior authorization from both course instructors.
- 33.7 Use of texts or papers prepared by an outside agency but submitted as the student's own work.
- 33.8 Falsification of results of a research study, term paper, and any other piece of academic work.

34. Examination Policies

- 34.1 Students must be on time for the start of examinations. Students arriving more than 30 minutes after the start will not be allowed to take the examination.
- 34.2 Students may only take examinations for those courses in which they are officially registered.

- 34.3 Personal possessions must be kept out of sight and reach (i.e., outside the room, or in the front or rear of the room).

- 34.11 Students who fail to take examinations (either mid-term or final) on the scheduled date without prior arrangement with the instructor or due to an emergency, such as serious illness, will not be allowed to take a make-up examination and will receive an F grade for that exam.
- 34.12 Any form of cheating or collaborating with others, including talking, whispering or signaling other students, looking at another exam paper, and crib notes or sheets, etc. will lead to a written warning placed in the student's official record. It may also incur some combination of the following consequences:
- Ineligibility to enroll in the next regular trimester.
 - An "F" grade in all courses registered within that trimester.
 - Dismissal from the College of Management.
 - Upon a second occurrence of any violation of academic or ethical standards and the student will be summarily dismissed.
 - Any appeal by the student must be made directly to the Academic Committee.

35. Plagiarism

Plagiarism is the unethical practice taking someone else's written ideas and claiming them as your own. Plagiarism may be committed intentionally or unintentionally. In either case it is still plagiarism and considered an unethical academic practice.

35.1 Students should consider carefully the proper procedures for giving credit to others in both Written Papers and Projects as well as in Oral Presentations.

35.2 Please attend to the following guidelines regarding the citation of others' work.

35.2.1 In all written work, sentences that you quote directly from another source must be enclosed with quotation marks. Provide citations in parentheses. "It takes five years or more for large-scale change to take place in large organizations" (Kotter, 1995, p. 13).

35.2.2 The full reference information must then be included in a Reference Section or Bibliography (See the Research Handbook for additional details on citation formats, etc.)

35.2.3 In all written work where you paraphrase (i.e., take the main ideas) from another source, you must cite that source in the text and include the full reference in a Reference Section or Bibliography. If it is not a direct quote word for word, you do not need to enclose it in quotation marks, but you do need to identify the source. "Kotter suggests that it takes five years or more for large-scale change to take place in large organizations" (Kotter, 1995).

35.2.4 In Oral Presentations where you may use PowerPoint slides note the following:

- Slides downloaded from the Internet or taken from a CD Rom should show the name of the source and the URL in a citation at the bottom of the slide.
- Slides that you create from a text where it is a direct quote (or close to one) should cite the author at the bottom of the slide.

Consequences

The College understands that students may not initially be familiar with this concept of plagiarism. During the terms of study, students will be reminded of the rules concerning plagiarism and the seriousness of violating this standard. We hope to guide students towards an understanding of proper conduct in this regard.

1. The Instructor will give students who violate this standard in writing papers and/or making presentations during their courses will follow these procedures:
 - Give a verbal warning;
 - Determine the necessary consequences in the class (e.g., 0 points on the assignment and/or rewriting of the assignment);
 - Depending upon the seriousness, the instructor may also inform the Honor Code Committee.
2. The second time that an instructor notices this behavior or if an instructor deems the violation to be particularly serious, he/she will report the violation Honor Code Committee. The Committee may choose to meet with the student. Depending upon the outcome, a notation may be made in the student's official record at the College.
3. The second time that a student has committed an Honor Code violation of sufficient seriousness to warrant notation in their student file, the student is subject to immediate dismissal from the College. Appeals will be made to the Academic Management Committee of the College.
4. At the Thesis or Project stage of study the College assumes that the student has already learned proper procedures with respect to the issue of plagiarism. The student's advisor will issue a single verbal warning along with a written notation for the student's official record. A second instance of plagiarism in a project document may result in dismissal.

Note: The consequences for plagiarism are not limited to the period of study while at the College. After graduation, if it is discovered that s/he student engaged in plagiarism while studying at CMMU (e.g., in the Thesis), the student's degree may be revoked.
